

BERLIN MIGRATION PERSPECTIVES SEMESTER

Situated in a modern metropolis of migration, Bard College Berlin (BCB) holds central to its mission the studies and knowledge produced through experiences of migration. Take courses from forcibly displaced faculty who've arrived at BCB, and learn alongside students from all over the world. Feel the weight of Berlin's history while walking to any one of the city's sites, thanks in large part to the arrival of artists, scholars, filmmakers and writers forced to leave their home countries because of political turmoil. Join this diverse and culturally vibrant community to experience all Berlin has to offer!

Student Initiatives and Opportunities to Engage

While at Bard College Berlin, there are many ways to engage with the local community.

Students have the option to take the Internship Seminar as one of their four academic courses, or to volunteer in addition to their studies. The Internship Seminar is both an academic course and an internship placement supervised by staff and faculty. Volunteering opportunities ranging from student led projects to community outreach are facilitated by the Civic Engagement Initiative.

Program for International Education and Social Change

The Program for International Education and Social Change has awarded 30 full four-year scholarships to Syrian, Iraqi, Afghan, Palestinian, and Eritrea students unable to study in their home countries. Bard College Berlin is a private institution acting in the public good with an interest in serving the needs of students who face displacement, forced migration, and economic or political insecurity. BCB has been one of the most proactive German higher education institutions providing access to education for this community.
